

Persevering through cancer treatment

Beth continues to endure her cancer treatment with great courage. The most challenging phases of her treatment, chemotherapy and radiation, are now finished, praise the Lord! Beth will continue receiving an antibody called 'Herceptin' once every three weeks until the middle of August. I, Frank, will continue to remotely lead my ministry team and engage in online evangelism. I am also planning my third trip back to Turkey this year on June 12th.

Jeff sought answers and found Jesus

Shortly after the new year a man named 'Jeff' wrote an email to our evangelistic website. In his email Jeff explained that he had grown up as a Muslim and did what he could with regard to worshipping God. Yet for all his efforts he still had questions about how he could know God better, understand what God was expecting of him, and keep moving forward spiritually in the best possible way. Jeff finished his email by expressing his desire for some kind of lessons or discussion group that could help him find the answers for which he was looking.

After responding to his email, I connected Jeff with 'Oliver,' a local believer who lived in the same city. Oliver invited Jeff to join him at church. Jeff didn't go the very next week like he had intended. And he didn't go the week after that. Weeks went by without any correspondence, but eventually in March Jeff came to church and met Oliver in person. Two days after attending the church service, Oliver and Jeff spent some time together addressing his questions, and then Jeff made the decision to become a follower of Christ. Praise the Lord!

Your love, encouragement and prayer support continues to make an eternal impact in the lives of people like Jeff, people who have started to follow Jesus. Thank you. We appreciate you!

Beth would persevere through treatment and side effects, and ultimately be completely healed of cancer

The Lord would teach Jeff what it means to abide in Jesus, the Vine, and help him to bear fruit

God would enable us to find a greater number university students whom He is drawing to Himself, using our social media strategies
